Starting university and settling in

Starting university is an exciting time, but it can also be a little overwhelming. It may take a few weeks for you to settle in, so it's important to take care of yourself and give yourself time to adjust. Remember, feeling anxious or homesick is completely normal.

Here are our top five tips to help you get the most out of starting at NTU:

1. Get to know the Resident Assistants (RAs) in your halls. They're there to help you settle in.
2. Get involved with Welcome Week. You'll meet new people, make new friends, and have lots of fun. With over 400 activities on offer, it's your chance to try something new. Visit www.ntuwelcomeweek.co.uk to plan your week.
3. Check out the Freshers' Fairs taking place on every campus. You can sign up to hundreds of clubs and societies – a great way to meet like-minded people. You'll get lots of freebies, too. See www.ntuwelcomeweek.co.uk to discover what's on offer.
4. NTU Sport has lots of activities and sessions to get involved with, from yoga to team sports. They also have a Play for Fun programme, which is great for meeting people. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/sport to find out more.
5. Your health and wellbeing is important, so remember to take care of yourself. Don't forget to register with a local medical practice. Check out www.ntu.ac.uk/studentsupport for details.

Healthy finances

Money worries can be stressful. If you need help and support with your finances as a student, there's plenty of support available.

Our Financial Support Service can offer advice on looking after your money and check that you're getting all the help you're entitled to.

The idea of budgeting can be a bit daunting if you've never done it before. It can even seem pointless, but if you want your student loan to last you until the end of each term, then it's pretty important. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/studentsupport for helpful tips on managing your money.

Working while you study

Sometimes extra money can come in handy. There are lots of options for working part-time, or during vacations.

It's not just a great way to earn some much-needed money – it'll also build your confidence, help you meet new people, and develop your skills and experience. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/employability to find out more.

NTU runs a Students in Classrooms scheme, which offers you the opportunity to work in local schools and help pupils achieve more. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/studentsinclassrooms for more information.

Unitemps is our in-house provider for all casual work at NTU. With a wide variety of vacancies, from Student Ambassadors and catering assistances to technical assistants and panellists, there are opportunities to suit your skills and development needs. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/jobshop to find out more.

Looking after yourself and others

Get a good night's sleep

We all need sleep. It's good for us, and it helps our mood and concentration.

Getting a decent night's sleep on a regular basis will help you cope with the demands of student life. Aim for seven to eight hours' sleep per night, so you'll be well-rested and ready to take on the day.

If you can't sleep, try reading an easy-to-read book, or listen to some chilled music. You could even try meditation – Headspace is a good app to use. Try not to stress about not getting enough sleep.

Looking after your mental health

Our mental health can be fluid, and some days will be better than others. If you ever find you're not feeling on form, it's important you do something about it. This can be easier said than done, but getting support early can make all the difference. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/wellbeing for advice and guidance about managing your mental health.

Remember: It's okay to not be okay. Chat to someone about what's bothering you. It'll make all the difference.

Looking out for your friends

A problem shared is a problem halved. If you think a friend might be struggling, ask them if they're okay and get the conversation going. We offer free Look After Your Mates training. This is nationally recognised training on how to support yourself and your friends. Please email healthyntu@ntu.ac.uk for more information and training dates.

Make time for yourself

Uni life can be busy. Trying lots of new things and meeting new people can lead to you not having enough time for yourself. It's really important to make sure you leave some space each week to do something for you. Visit friends, watch your favourite film, go for a walk – do what works for you.

Student Mental Health Champions

Our Student Mental Health Champion programme helps promote good mental health. Free training is provided, and you can get involved with events, developing new ideas, and raising awareness.

Contact healthyntu@ntu.ac.uk for more information.

Managing stress

A certain amount of stress is good for us, but it's important to do something about it before it gets too overwhelming. We all deal with stress differently, so try different coping strategies to find out what works for you.

If it's exam stress, check out www.ntu.ac.uk/sos for helpful tips and advice.

Help yourself

Find out what resources are out there to help you. Lots of great information can be found on the Healthy NTU dashboard on the MyNTU app.

It's good to talk

If you're worried about how you're feeling, or if there's something on your mind that's bothering you, talking to someone can really help you to work through your problems and put things in perspective. This can be whoever you're most comfortable with – your parents, your friends, a course tutor, or an impartial helpline like Samaritans.

Student Minds

Student Minds is the leading charity for students' mental health. Check out www.studentminds.org.uk for information on:

- the transition to University
- looking after your mental wellbeing
- helping friends who are struggling
- managing exam stress.

Remember: If things get too much for you, we have a range of services to help.

The logo for Student Minds, featuring the words "student" and "minds" in a bold, orange, sans-serif font, stacked vertically. The text is set against a light orange background that has a subtle, larger-scale pattern.

Eating well

If you eat well-balanced meals, you'll have more energy, find it easier to concentrate, and feel on top form. This doesn't mean you have to follow a certain diet – it's just about moderation and making sure your body gets the nutrients you need to stay healthy and well.

Shopping essential top tips

Eating healthily doesn't have to be complicated or expensive. Here are some shopping essentials to get you started:

- brown rice and spaghetti are perfect for a curry or spaghetti bolognese
- frozen vegetables are easy to warm up, boil or microwave, and they go with most meals
- frozen fruit is great for smoothies. Mix it with your choice of milk or water, add a banana, peanut butter, avocado or splash of honey, and blend in a smoothie maker
- porridge oats (gluten-free options are available) are great for a satisfying breakfast and only take two minutes in the microwave
- tinned baked beans are great on toast, on a baked potato, or as part of a fry-up; they're also a good source of protein and fibre
- take a tin of mixed bean salad and add some fresh baby tomatoes, lettuce, an egg and hummus to make a tasty meal
- eggs can be fried, scrambled or poached. Add to a sandwich or just have them on toast

- cans of soup are quick and easy when you're in a hurry
- buy fresh fruit for the perfect healthy snack.

Visit www.savethestudent.org/save-money for more shopping essentials and money saving ideas.

Foodshare allotment project

The Foodshare Project uses allotment space in the gardens behind Peverell reception on our Clifton Campus. You can grow your own food, attend free climate-friendly gardening training, meet new people, and make new friends.

The food grown is split – you keep half, and the other half goes to local charities and people in the community.

Contact environment.team@ntu.ac.uk for more information.

NTU eating disorder service

Eating Disorders in Student Services (EDISS) offers a wide range of confidential services to students at NTU who have a disordered relationship with their body and food.

Visit www.firststepsed.co.uk/student-services for more detail. Alternatively, you can email info@firststepsed.co.uk or call 0133 236 7571. No pre-diagnosis of an eating disorder is needed when seeking advice.

Check out www.ntu.ac.uk/healthyntu for Healthy NTU recipes and useful advice.

Being active

Being active is a great way to make friends and meet new people. It's fun and has many benefits including producing happy hormones, boosting your immune system, and increasing your energy levels. It's important you choose an activity you enjoy doing.

There are lots of options to choose from at NTU including:

- sports clubs
- group fitness classes like yoga, spin and zumba
- the climbing wall on our City Campus
- bookable facilities so you can play games like badminton, tennis and basketball with your friends
- our Play for Fun programme of beginner and recreational sport
- qualified instructors on hand to provide information and advice to help you set and achieve your goals

- Boditrax equipment to help track your progress.

NTU Active membership gives you access to on-campus fitness suites, classes and facilities. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/sport for further information and the full range of classes and facilities available.

NTU Active membership at Brackenhurst

NTU in partnership with Southwell Leisure Centre, which is close to the campus, provides reduced membership for NTU students.

To sign up visit www.active4today.co.uk or pop into the Leisure Centre on Nottingham Road, Southwell, Nottinghamshire, NG25 0LG.

Other active opportunities

UCycle bike hire scheme

NTU has a bike hire scheme to help you get around. NTU City Campus also has a fully equipped Bike Factory workshop, which offers maintenance sessions, repairs and parts at student prices.

Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/sustainability to find out more.

Mindfulness walks

We offer short mindfulness walks that take you off the beaten track and help to reduce stress and recharge your batteries.

Please contact healthyntu@ntu.ac.uk for more information.

Sports Access Scheme (SAS)

Exercise is very good for you. It can give you more energy, reduce mental health issues, and help you to meet new people. The scheme offers two options:

- group activity sessions (minimum of six people, weekly session which changes each week)
- Play for Fun activities.

The scheme is only available to students who are receiving support from Student Support Services.

For further information, contact healthyntu@ntu.ac.uk or ask a member of the Student Support team.

Your health

Register with a local doctor

It's essential you register with a local doctor. It won't affect your GP at home, and it'll make sure you can get help locally. We have Health Centres on campus that offer key services like:

- free condoms
- sexual health screening and advice
- mental health drop-in clinics
- general health and wellbeing checks and advice
- immunisations and vaccinations, including the MenACWY meningitis vaccine.

Treatment and advice for non-life-threatening conditions

If your GP practice is closed and you need urgent advice, or treatment for a condition that isn't life-threatening, call 111. Calls to the NHS 111 service are free from both landlines and mobiles.

Healthy sex life

Your sex life should be a positive aspect of the student experience. Safe sex is important for your health and wellbeing. Using protection helps to reduce the risk of sexually transmitted infections (STIs) and unintended pregnancies. If you're in any doubt, get checked out – some STIs don't necessarily present any symptoms.

Free STI testing is available on campus via the NTU Health Centres, and through NHS services. We also have the C Card scheme, which gives you access to free condoms until you're 24.

Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/sexualhealth for more information on STIs, the C Card scheme, and sexual health services.

Meningitis – know the signs and symptoms and get vaccinated

Meningitis and septicaemia are serious life-threatening diseases. They can kill within hours, and for those who survive, the effects can be life changing.

First year university students are at particular risk because of people coming together from all over the world, which can cause exposure to different viruses and bacteria.

Meningitis ACWY vaccination

The only way you can protect yourself is by having the Meningitis ACWY vaccination, ideally before coming to NTU.

If you've not already had the vaccine, it's very important you get it as soon as possible – it could make all the difference.

The vaccine is free for all Year One students under the age of 25. Register with a GP and ask for the ACWY vaccination to be protected from the most serious strains of meningitis.

Signs and symptoms

It's important you know the signs and symptoms of meningitis. Even though meningitis is rare, it could easily be mistaken for “freshers’ flu” or a bad hangover.

The symptoms of meningitis and septicaemia are not always easy to recognise, but they can develop very rapidly – sometimes within a matter of hours. Look after yourself and each other. If a friend is unwell, check on them regularly and act quickly. If you suspect meningitis, get medical help immediately.

Contact NHS 111 for advice or 999 in an emergency.

Check out the signs and symptoms below.

Meningitis. Make sure you're protected.

Meningitis* kills. Make sure you're vaccinated and know the signs and symptoms. Symptoms can appear in any order. Some may not appear at all. Early symptoms can include:

fever, headache, vomiting, diarrhoea, muscle pain, stomach cramps, fever with cold hands and feet

	Fever, cold hands and feet		Vomiting
	Drowsy, difficult to wake		Confusion and irritability
	Severe muscle pain		Pale, blotchy skin, spots/rash
	Severe headache		Stiff neck
	Dislike bright lights		Convulsions/seizures

If someone is ill and getting worse, call NHS 111 or your GP straight away. In an emergency dial 999 or go to your nearest A&E.

The MenACWY jab is free for all eligible students – if you're unsure if you've already had it, call your GP.

*Meningitis is used to describe meningitis and meningococcal septicaemia.

Alcohol and drugs

Alcohol

Here are our top-five tips for safe drinking:

1. Make sure you eat before you go out. It will prevent you getting drunk too quickly.
2. Know your limits. Pacing yourself, having breaks from drinking and opting for some water in between drinks can be the key to a good night and safer drinking. Remember that you can still have a good time if you choose not to have a drink.
3. It's easy to give into peer pressure around drinking, especially during Welcome Week. Drink at your own pace and stop when you've had enough.
4. Mixing your drinks can have a more significant effect on your body, including hangovers.
5. Look out for your friends and keep safe. Try to stay together and don't walk home alone.

If you have a mental health condition, large amounts of alcohol can act as a depressant. Visit www.drinkaware.co.uk for helpful advice on alcohol.

Drugs

The best advice is not to take drugs. If you're going to experiment with drugs, it's very important you are well informed.

- Psychoactive substances, like those that replicate the effects of drugs such as cocaine or ecstasy, may have ingredients that are harmful.
- Purity levels will differ from drug to drug. A drug with a higher-than-usual level of purity can cause aggression, loss of consciousness, sickness, paranoia, and an increased risk of overdose.

- Taking drugs along with alcohol can increase the negative effects and put extra strain on your heart. There's no way of knowing how the substances will react together.
- Never feel pressured into taking drugs. No means no. We provide essential, confidential and impartial advice on campus.
- If you have a mental health condition, taking drugs can cause anxiety, panic, confusion, paranoia and psychosis.

It's very important to get help if you're suffering from the effects of taking drugs.

Look out for your mates. In an emergency getting help quickly can help save lives.

If someone is unconscious or having difficulty breathing act quickly:

- place them in the recovery position
- call 999 for an ambulance or get someone else to call
- stay with them until the ambulance arrives
- hand leftover substances to the ambulance crew and tell them everything you know about what's been taken. You won't get into trouble, and the information could save their life.

Visit www.talktofrank.com for honest information about drugs.

Drink spiking

Here are some top tips to reduce the risk of your drink being spiked:

- don't leave your drink unattended – hand it to a mate or carry it with you
- never accept a drink from someone you don't know or trust
- cover the tops of bottles with your thumb
- be safe and look out for each other
- if you think your drink has been spiked, seek help and get medical advice
- spiking is a serious crime; report it to the police as soon as possible.

NTU is smoke free

NTU has a smoke-free policy on its campuses, this includes e-cigarettes. If caught stubbing out cigarettes anywhere within the city you could be hit with an on-the-spot fine.

Visit www.nhs.uk/smokefree for help and support on stopping smoking.

Support on campus

If you're concerned in any way about alcohol or drugs, it's always best to chat to someone about it. Impartial, confidential help, advice and support is available on campus from:

Your Health Centre and GP – medical practitioners are trained to be able to advise you.

Nottingham Recovery Network is a local NHS service on campus. For confidential and impartial advice visit www.nottinghamrecoverynetwork.com for more information.

Safe and secure

There are many ways that you can reduce the chances of being a victim of crime. Check out the following advice and top tips.

Stay safe

Staying safe is important. If you're out and about, taking some basic precautions can help you stay out of trouble.

- Don't walk home alone – you could be an easy target for crime.
- Stay on main roads – there are more likely to be other people around and the lighting tends to be better.
- Use a reputable taxi company to make sure you get home without a problem.

NTSU run a safe taxi scheme. No cash on you? No problem. Visit www.trentstudents.org/yoursupport for more information and advice.

Be secure

Students are quite often the victims of crime – your homes can be seen as easy targets by burglars who know that there's usually a range of expensive items inside.

Being burgled or becoming the victim of other types of crime can have a negative effect on how you feel.

Consider these top tips to prevent being burgled.

- A third of burglars get in through a window. Lock doors and windows at night and when you're not in.
- Burglaries are often opportunistic crimes. Storing valuables out of sight will make a thief less likely to try.

- Leave a light on when you are out so that the place looks occupied.

Immobilise is a free online service where you can record your possessions, making them easier to recover if they're stolen. Go to www.immobilise.com and register your stuff.

Visit www.police.uk/crime-prevention-advice for crime prevention advice and links.

Staying safe online and identity theft

It's vital that you stay safe when using the Internet. Never give out personal information when you're online, regardless of who you are (or think you are) talking to.

Go www.getsafeonline.org for general advice about being safe when online.

Scams and identity theft can affect anyone. They usually come in the form of an email or a phone call, or in the post. Visit www.actionfraud.police.uk for advice on how to protect your identity and prevent criminals from committing fraud in your name.

Home sweet home

Where you live and who you live with can have a great impact on how you feel. It's important to be considerate when living in shared accommodation, as your actions can have a direct impact on those around you.

Stay safe

If you're having problems with your accommodation or your flatmates, it's better to do something about it sooner rather than later. Dealing with problems with flatmates can be difficult. Simply talking about your concerns can help clear the air and make you feel better.

The Students' Union can provide independent advice to help you resolve a problem and make living with others a more pleasant experience. Visit www.trentstudents.org/ias for more information.

If you live in University accommodation, we have Residence Assistants (RAs) on hand to help. RAs are more experienced students, who are in halls to offer friendly advice and support, or to give you information about the other services the University can provide. They work closely with the Residence Management Team, and the Warden Service, to ensure your time in accommodation is a positive and enjoyable experience.

If you need to report an incident or nuisance behaviour, give your RA or the residence staff as much information as possible. They'll pass this on to the Warden, who'll take action. If you're not happy in your residence, contact Student Accommodation Services – they'll offer advice on how you can resolve the problem.

Email accommodation@ntu.ac.uk or visit them at the Student Services Centre.

Respect at NTU

Give it. Get it. Expect it.

NTU and the city of Nottingham are diverse places, and it's great to have so many people from all walks of life living here. It's therefore very important that we respect each other. Discriminatory and negative behaviour, including the use of social media to demean and humiliate, is not tolerated and may also be unlawful. This includes:

- sexism
- misogyny
- transphobia
- homophobia
- sexual assault
- sexual violence.

Any behaviour that breaches the Student Code of Behaviour can have very serious consequences.

Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/respect for more details.

Healthy spirit

If you want to explore the big questions in life, or any spiritual or religious matters, get in touch with our multifaith team of chaplains and faith advisers. Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/faith to find out more about their programme of activities, including prayer meetings and meditation. You can also visit our Wellbeing Centre on the Clifton Campus, where you'll find a warm welcome and opportunities to get involved.

If you're a practising member of a faith community and want to meet other students who share your faith, visit www.trentstudents.org/societies and look out for the faith societies through the Students' Union.

Dignity and respect

NTU offers confidential dispute resolution services :

- Dignity and Respect Advisory Service
- Mediation Service

Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/equality for more details. Call 0115 848 6176 or email equality@ntu.ac.uk to make an appointment.

Consent is everything

It's important to know about consent, what it means, and the boundaries that surround it. Sexual consent is when two or more people agree to have sex, or engage in other sexual activity, with one another.

A person should not be persuaded or forced into sexual activity, especially via threat or any other type of force which may influence choice. This includes the person being under the influence of drugs or alcohol. If you're thinking of engaging in sexual activity with someone who is under the influence of drugs or alcohol, stop and think: are they in a position to give their consent?

Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/respect for more information.

Sexual violence

Sexual violence is an act that occurs without consent. This includes:

- sexual harassment
- rape
- sexual assault
- any form of sexual touching.

If you have experienced any form of sexual violence, help and support is available to help think through your options and support you.

Email StudentSupportOfficers@ntu.ac.uk or visit www.ntu.ac.uk/sexualviolencesupport for help.

Hate crime

If you or a friend has experience a hate incident, you can report it at www.ntu.ac.uk/hatecrime. When a hate incident is a crime, Nottinghamshire Police can provide relevant support.

Whether you report anonymously or not, your report will be taken seriously. Remember: by reporting an incident or crime, you may also help to stop it happening to someone else.

Nottingham Trent Students' Union

Nottingham Trent Students' Union (NTSU) offers a great range of opportunities designed to give you the tools and support you need to have the best possible time at NTU.

Societies

NTSU has over 110 societies you can join and get involved with. They are a great way to make friends, pursue your passion and learn new skills. From accounting and airsoft as well as faith societies, there is a society for every interest. Visit www.trentstudents.org/societies to find out how you can sign up.

Communities

NTSU Communities are short-term projects with clear end goals. If you have a great idea for a fun one-off event, if you have identified a demand for a specific opportunity on campus, or if you want to raise awareness on a certain issue, a community is the way to achieve this quickly.

Visit www.trentstudents.org/communities to find out more.

Try something new – Give it a Go

Interested in trying a variety of one-off events and activities throughout the year, no long-term commitment required? The Give it a Go programme is open to all students at NTU and is a great way to try something new, make friends and have fun. Visit www.trentstudents.org/giveitago for a full list of events and activities.

Information and advice

We know that university life comes with its challenges, which is why we're here to support you. NTSU's Information and Advice Service offers free and non-judgmental advice on everything from money matters to mental health.

Visit www.trentstudents.org/IAS to contact them.

NTSU student representatives

We have a range of elected representatives in place to make sure your voice is heard. Each representative is a graduate student from NTU, and they're passionate about making sure every student has the opportunity to have the best possible experience at NTU.

Visit www.trentstudents.org/yourreps to see a list of your NTSU representatives.

Volunteering at NTU

Volunteering can make a real difference, and not just to the people you're helping. People who give up their time to volunteer also gain from the experience. The benefits of volunteering includes:

- meeting new people
- boosting your self-confidence
- a feeling of achievement
- developing your personal skills
- gaining experience.

There are lots of exciting volunteering opportunities available to all NTU students, whether you're looking to volunteer in a local project, a schools project, a sport, or through an international opportunity. The Students in Classrooms scheme offers hundreds of opportunities for work in local schools, to help pupils achieve more.

Visit www.ntu.ac.uk/volunteering or www.trentstudents.org/volunteering to find out more.
